

Dear Everyone

I have recently returned from a business trip, visiting the major cities within South Africa. These trips are extremely gratifying. Spreading and sharing the word of "learning through horses" is such an honour: To be part of a process through which people open themselves to a level of self-discovery and tap into the wisdom of "seeing clearly".

I have given up the need to explain why this work is so powerful. I have witnessed so many "Aha!" moments, especially during my last two programs that I am blown away by the impact of working with these amazing animals.

Needless to say, these shifts also occur in me, as I will always be a student of this work.

Conscious Connection Workshop For Families

The work with horses can be applied to so many other areas.

One of the areas that I have explored is a Conscious Connection Workshop for Families.

It is a one-day experiential learning experience that provides a variety of self-discovery and family relationship-building activities for families who wish to relate in a more meaningful way.

Return On Investment

I am often asked about the long-term impact of Equine Leadership. It was always a vague area for me, until I was allowed to witness the impact that this program had on one of my clients, over a ten months' period. The answer is simply, "PRICELESS!"

Equine Youth Leadership Development

My passion to make a contribution to Youth Equine Leadership Development in South Africa is still an open request to the Universe!

I trust that the right sponsor will appear soon.

Global Developments

I am very grateful to be returning to the U.K this October, to continue the work that I started there last year. Horses are truly universal animals, and I have learned that I can do this work all over the world!

Funky Monkey

And, last but not least, a truly amazing animal, with the name of Funky Monkey, was given to me, earlier this year.

He role models to me every day the lessons of living in the moment and being present and centered.

I look forward to seeing you all soon.
